

Tucker Mercier
May 7, 2020
Programming Paradigms

Final Project Deliverable

Vision Statement:

The Major League Soccer Team Info Site provides users with the basic current info about every MLS team (or at least the 4 I used), including their nicknames, conference, logo, stadium, and current head coach. The site gives users the ability to like their favorite teams throughout the league and shows how many others feel the same way you do. Users can also interact with a map of every team's location in the US, which also zooms in on a team's stadium if the team's icon is clicked.

Architecture:

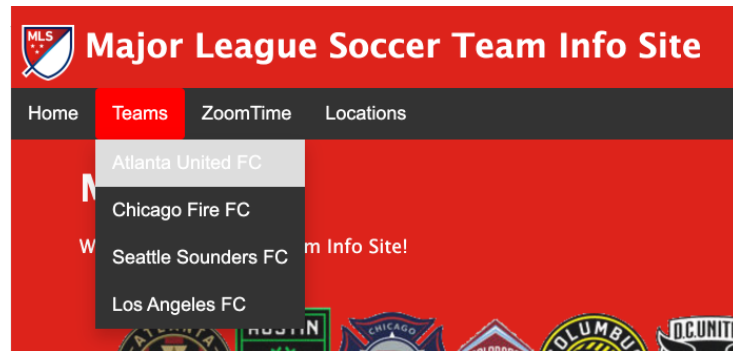

User's Guide:

Thank you for taking the time to visit our site! Without further ado, let's take a look at some of the website's features.

Below is the headline banner and navigation bar that allows to you traverse the site. The logo in the top left corner also acts as a link that redirects to the home page.

As you can see below, the "Teams" button is also a drop-down menu that takes you to the various teams' info pages.

Below is the home page of the site, of which you are greeted by a welcome message and images of the 26 current MLS teams, as well as 1 future team that has not played a season yet.

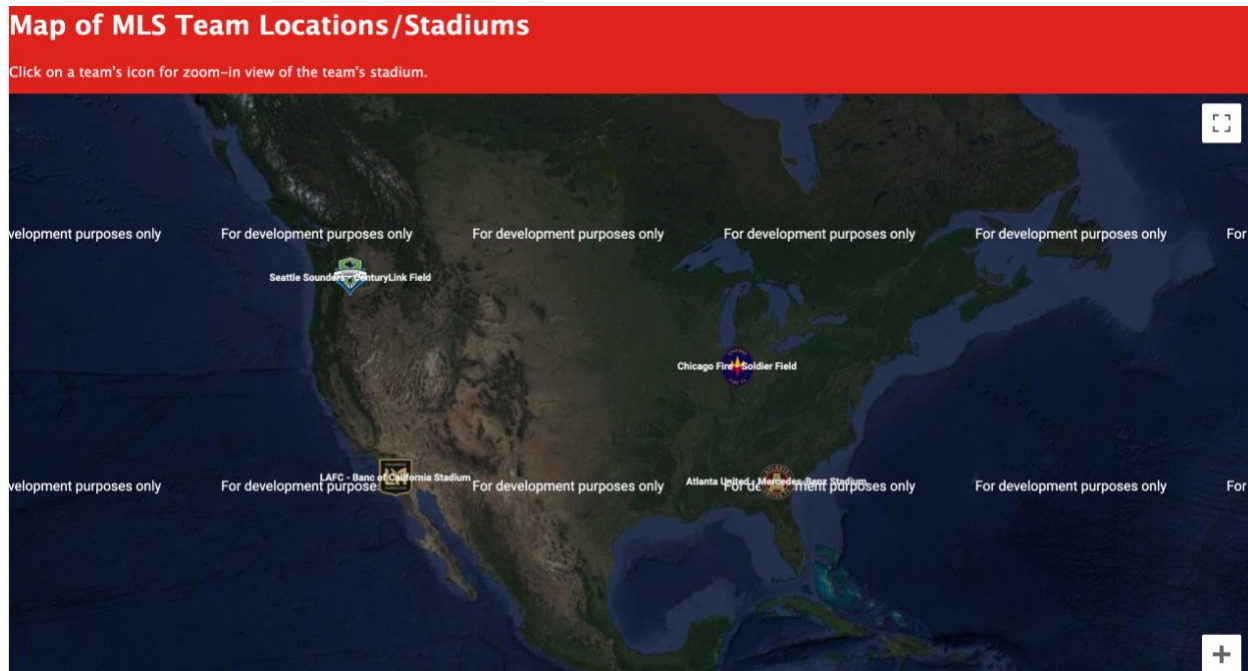

The four images below are examples of the info pages that are the main feature of the site. It contains basic info including the team's conference, nickname(s), founded date, stadium, and current head coach. The page also include a like feature that allows you like your favorite team and shows the number of people that have like the page thus far.

Below is an image of the ZoomTime page of the site, which allows you to compare the logos of the four teams included on the site. As you can see, the logos are very different!

The last key feature of the site is the map of the locations/stadiums of the MLS teams. It utilizes Google Maps, which allows you to interact with the map and zoom in to the cities and stadiums of the various teams. As you can see, the markers/locations of the teams are indicated by their respective logos and team names. It also includes their stadium names. You can click on these logos to zoom in closely on the teams' stadiums.

Thank you so much for visiting the site! We hope that you got your fill of MLS information!